

"Generation Restoration" By Rabiah Isah Abubakar

Rising temperatures scorch the earth, like burning flames,
The ice caps weep, as the earth proclaim Its fury, loud and clear, a warning to us all, through droughts and floods, storms and deaths

As the earth grapples with the wear and tear, of its atmosphere.
Boiling seas and fading trees, violent weathers and poisoned breeze, food is rare as the earth loses its essence,
The science is clear, our doom is near.

Yet a generation of heroes is born with the hope to repair, with the hope to restore to shape the future, with passion and resilience to save the trees, and heal the earth.

With every step, with every voice,
Their message echo loud and clear
A demand for change, a refusal to fear.
They hold within a hope for life, through rebirth of green and life.

They strive for a future where all can thrive

Without the weight of climate's fright

They innovate, they create , they disrupt the status quo

With sustainable solutions, renewable energy , and a greener way to grow

So here is a call to join our cause,

For the fight against climate change needs us all

A collective action, a united stand, hand in hand as individuals, as communities, as organizations and governments.

A generation of rebirth, amplifying climate voices, for greener lands and cleaner oceans, for clearer skies and lovely weather.

A generation rebirth, developing climate resilient infrastructure too,

Supporting climate education , research and innovation, to see this journey through

With hope and resilience, we'll face the challenge, united as one Generation restoration leading the way, beneath the bright warm sun.

Their legacy will be a world transformed, a future reborn,

Where sustainability and justice reign and climate change is but a distant scorn.
