

The 2025 Dawn Project theme, “Generation Restoration: Shaping Our Future,” speaks directly to my heart because I believe this is our moment to rise. As a 15 year old Nigerian girl, I’ve seen gutters overflow, trees cut without thought, and the weather become more confusing every year. But I’ve also seen young people like me plant hope by cleaning our streets, starting eco-clubs, and speaking up for the Earth. To me, restoration isn’t just about fixing the environment; it’s about healing how we live with nature. I want a future where clean air and safe water are not luxuries, where children don’t fall sick from waste burning behind their homes, and where every voice, no matter how young is heard. The Dawn Project reminds me that I don’t have to wait to grow up to make a difference. I can start now, with my words, actions, and dreams. Whether I’m planting a tree or educating a friend, I know small steps lead to big change. I am proud to be part of Generation Restoration bold, caring, and determined to rewrite our story. This Earth is ours to protect, and together, we can shape a future that is green, clean, and full of life.
