Topic: GENERATION RESTORATION: SHAPING OUR FUTURE

Every time I walk past a flooded street or a waste-filled gutter, I wonder, will my upcoming generation inherit a dying planet? "Generation Restoration" means more than just fixing the environment. It means taking responsibility for damage we didn't cause, but must correct.

In my school, we're told to bring ten plastic bottles each week. At first, it felt like just a task. But now I see the meaning. Each bottle we bring is one less polluting the earth. That small habit opened my eyes, restoration begins with little actions.

We, the youth, can do more. We can plant trees, stop littering, reuse bags and bottles, and teach others to make a difference. It's not always easy, but even small changes matter. Our grandparents used to live with less and still made most of what they had. Maybe it's time to return to that mindset, with fresh ideas.

In conclusion, we may be young but we have the power. Restoration starts with us, at home, at school and in our communities. The earth needs healing, and we are the generation to do it.
