

GENERATION RESTORATION: SHAPING OUR FUTURE!

CLIMATE CHANGE

Climate change a cankerworm,
Eating deep into the ozone.
We all complain about global warming,
Oh! The weather is too hot we say.
Have we forgotten we are the perpetrators?

We panic about the rising sea levels.
The forecast warns of a terrible storm.
The sky is confused and can't decide.
It sends heavy rainfalls by surprise.
Who lit the match that started the fire?

Oh! We lost them to the storm,
Mom got swept away by the flood.
The wildfire incident traumatized her.
They lost their home to the flood.
Who owns the finger behind the trigger?

Now we feel the brunt of the fire we started.
It's high time we laid down,
The guns that burn our palms.
And stopped being the perpetrators of what kills us.
Let us restore the coming generation!

Bury a seed or two to nurture,
One or two flowerbeds on the porch,
A small breath of life in the morning dew.
A vegetable garden in your backyard won't hurt.
What has that green life done to you?
That you strip it off the Earth's surface.

Haven't you heard about recycling?
Why burn down those plastics again?
Why don't we make use of our natural resources?
Solar, wind and hydro power instead of fossil fuels.
Nature is here to serve us and us to protect
Not to drain, pollute or neglect.

Now you know how to stop pulling the trigger on yourself.
Knowledge is for us to share:
Tell it to that friend, neighbour and colleague you care about.
If hearts unite and waste no more,
Hope is not a distant shore.
WE CAN RESHAPE OUR FUTURE!

Name: Hunpe Klistiwedo Josephine
Category: writing _ age 14-17

