

FOUND

The Earth has found saviours
Men and women who want to run
Their hands through the water bodies
And know what freedom feels like

The Earth has found healers rubbing balms on her wounds
Healers who have imposed on Everything that clogs and stifles her airways like styrofoams

The Earth has found advocates
Travelling around the world
To bring change to the hidden
Corners of the streets

The Earth has found seers
Who understand the reality
Of cause and effect, and instead of Spitting litters on mother Earth
Her branches are filled with garbage cans

The Earth has found builders
Who challenge the norm and
Make a difference by erecting green
Buildings

The earth has found children
Who stick their ears close to the Ground and listen
Children who believe that she must Hold spaces for biodiversity

The Earth has found me
A poet who is writing till she is Saved completely by educating
The ignorants.
