

The Truth

Look around.

The planet is getting hotter —

Videos of places on social media where you could fry an egg without a gas cooker.

The planet is gradually becoming a disaster.

The rate of destruction is getting faster and faster, and it's not something we can fix with a plaster.

Our home might be in danger.

Sea levels are rising;

Soon we won't be smiling.

Plants and animals are struggling; the ecosystem is slowly declining.

Fishes aren't safe because some of us can't properly dispose of a bottle of Coke.

You may think it's a joke — until there's nothing to wet your throat:

Water scarcity.

We need to shape our future, or no more beaches with clean shores.

The real world isn't like streaks on Snapchat, where you could just click "restore" and everything goes back to how it was before.

Work needs to be done for the sake of everyone —

So we don't become like Amur leopards, who need external help to survive.

We need to stay alive.

People need to hear the truth — especially our youth.

We can become a generation for restoration

If at least a major fraction of the population takes action.

Let's have compassion.
